A new day is dawning in the tomato fields of Immokalee, Florida, with workers, growers, and retailers working in partnership to stamp out the root causes of human trafficking in the fields. The CIW’s Fair Food Program—recently recognized by the White House for its success at the grassroots level—ensures that the dignity of workers is respected, and that the people who pick the food we eat every day are paid a fair wage. T’ruah stands in solidarity with the CIW in their fight to ensure a just harvest.